Dear Mrs Williams Harvey,

I hope this letter finds you well. I am writing to express my enthusiasm for the HTML coding covered in our business class. The insights I have gained from your lectures and the accompanying coursework have significantly enhanced my understanding of creating websites.

Your teaching style and the real-world applications you incorporate have made the concepts particularly engaging and relevant. I have especially enjoyed when we had to create a shop and found it instrumental in broadening my perspective on online marketing.

I am eager to delve deeper into business studies and would appreciate any additional resources or guidance you could provide. I am also interested in discussing potential opportunities for further involvement, such as research projects or practical applications related to the course material.

Thank you for your dedication and for fostering a stimulating learning environment. I look forward to continuing to learn and grow in your class.

Sincerely,

Shawn Wanniarachchige
